To whom it may concern:

As a tax payer I am seriously concerned regarding the use of my tax dollars to experiment with the mixing of animal and human embryonic stem cells. The moral implications of producing and experimenting with a human/animal being are abhorrent.

Has this been seriously considered by the scientific community? Human life is sacred; to begin experimentation on the human/animal embryo is tantamount to those experiments of the evil Nazi regime, which we Americans fought to eradicate.

If I as a taxpayer have a vote to use tax dollars to fund this "research" I say a resounding NO.

Thank you,
