

I learned recently about an experiment to be conducted by NIH in which a human embryo and an animal embryo are to be combined. I am opposed to this. It seems Frankensteinian to me. If this creation has life, what will become of it? Is it human or is it animal? I think that there are ethical questions about this experiment and I oppose it. Sincerely, Arlene Kalinowski