To All It May Concern,

I am writing to strongly oppose funding research on human-animal chimeras. Taxpayer dollars on the creation and manipulation of beings whose existence blur the line between humans and animals should not be expended.

Because something can be done does not mean it should be done, and most certainly not be funded with taxpayer dollars. The research NIH wants to do is grossly unethical.

Thank you for including my comments in all deliberation of this most serious issue.

Sincerely,
Nancy Kotowski
