

September 4, 2016

Dear Sirs,

I find it ethically wrong and protest the spending of my tax dollars on the creation and manipulation of new beings whose very existence blurs the line between humans and animals. This, to me, is grossly unethical research.

Human-animal embryonic research relies on the killing of humans at the embryonic stage to harvest their stem cells. It involves the production of animals that could have partly or wholly human brains. The production of animals that could have human sperm or eggs is completely unacceptable.

In the name of God + man I voice my strong protest.

Sincerely,
Patricia Moss